

2021-22 REPORT TO THE COMMUNITY

CREATING OPPORTUNITIES TO IMPROVE STUDENTS' LIVES, ENABLE SUCCESS, AND STRENGTHEN OUR COMMUNITY.

LETTER FROM THE COLLEGE PRESIDENT

Bob Mohrbacher, Ed.D.
Centralia College President

The 2022-23 school year is an exciting time for Centralia College. After a couple of years of pandemic disruption, we are finally back to normal operations. Enrollment is growing again, and it's exciting to have all of our students back on campus, attending classes and participating in a variety of activities.

If you have driven by campus, you will have seen the new athletic field now located on the northeast corner of campus. Our student athletes will be able to start using the field in mid-January, and we look forward to the baseball and softball seasons this spring and a brand-new field for our home games. This also means that we will be adding a Men's Soccer team next fall—recruitment is underway now so we can field a great team in 2023.

We continue to develop new programs of study. The Board of Trustees recently approved a new degree, Bachelor of Science in Computer Science. This will be a transfer degree that will prepare students for careers in software engineering and research. Look for more announcements on that over the next year.

We are also engaged in an important strategic planning process. Our Institutional Research team have conducted hundreds of interviews and listening sessions with college faculty and staff, students, and community members. If you participated in one of those sessions, thank you very much. From the data we are gathering, we will develop a new strategic plan for the college that help us focus on the most important college issues over the next several years.

Thanks to all of you who continue to support Centralia College and our community. We could not do the important work we do without your support and encouragement.

Bob Mohrbacher, President
Centralia College

LETTER FROM THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

John Klumper
Centralia College Board President

As we navigate a post-pandemic, new normal here at the oldest continuous operating community college in Washington State, the biggest change I see is an increase in activity.

To hold a board meeting in person and catch up on life has been wonderful.

This year the Centralia College Foundation Board hit the ground running. From hosting STP bicycle riders, a Night at the Olympic Club, a Charlie Albright Concert, to the Annual Gala, we have been busy and there is more coming. Foundation Night at the Theatre will feature the "Sound of Music" in May and this year the Foundation will add a celebration of our alumni the night prior to commencement, in June.

We presented over 400 scholarships totaling over $640,000. We currently have an enrollment of 4621 students in a wide variety of academic transfer and career training programs as well as transitional education, and early childhood programs. The college offers five bachelor of applied science degrees; Behavioral Healthcare, Information Technology-Application Development, Diesel Technology, Applied Management (business) and Teacher Education (K-8). Here are some numbers that recently jumped out at me. Students in selected programs applied bachelor – 174; corrections – 484; running start – 406; worker retraining – 220; and incarcerated Green Hill students - 9.

In 2019, Centralia College launched a commercial driving program to train adults to earn a Commercial Driver's License (CDL). Since that time, demand for CDL drivers locally, regionally, and statewide has increased exponentially. To meet that demand, Centralia College is launching an additional cohort of CDL training each quarter, allowing up to two dozen new CDL drivers to launch every three months. Recently an $800,000 CDL Grant has been awarded to Centralia College. The funds are to be distributed over 3 years and the funds will allow the program to purchase new trucks, hire additional instructors and perhaps build perimeter fencing and a portable unit at the current CDL training location.

In the past year or so Centralia College has expanded its footprint. To the east we, primarily funded by the students, have completed the college's new athletic field for soccer, baseball and softball; with games scheduled there this spring! Go Blazers!

To the west, in partnership with Collegiate Housing International, construction is underway for a three story, 112 bed student housing project. This is all very exciting! The foundation board has been working on this for years.

To the south, we recently closed on acquisitions of properties where the Teacher Education Building will be constructed.

The completion of this project is the final piece of the 20-year master plan of the college. I don't know what is more exciting, the completion of a 20-year plan, or the creation of a new 20-year plan. College staff has been meeting with dozens of local groups both on campus, and throughout the county, to get input on their vision for the future of Centralia College.

As you can now agree, what I mentioned earlier; increase of activity. This could be an understatement!

AIR FORCE VETERAN AND LIFELONG EDUCATOR NAMED 2022 DISTINGUISHED ALUMNUS

Col. Lynne C. Thompson, US Air Force (retired), Ed.D. was honored at commencement June 17

The Centralia College Foundation selected retired Air Force Colonel Lynne Clark Thompson, Ed.D. as the 2022 Distinguished Alumnus. Col. Thompson is a 1970 graduate of Centralia College who served more than 44 years in the Department of Defense, both in the US Air Force and in Federal Civil Service, primarily as an educator and administrator.

Thompson graduated from Centralia High School and attended Centralia College for his first two years of college. “Centralia College was life-changing for me,” he shared. “I was introverted in high school and I realized I needed to grow beyond that stereotype. Centralia College provided me opportunities to do that.”

After graduating from CC, Thompson earned his bachelor’s degree in speech and communications at the College of the Ozarks in Missouri and enlisted in the Air Force. “That was during the Vietnam war. I thought I’d do my patriotic duty and be out in four years,” he said. “Instead, I served in the Air Force for almost 32 years.”

Initially, Thompson became a linguist and later completed Officer Training School. After being commissioned in 1973, he successfully trained to navigate B-52 aircraft and, in less than five years, became an instructor who was responsible for maintaining the proficiency of radar navigators at Andersen Air Force Base in Guam. Thompson earned his master’s degree in sociology from Pepperdine University in 1979.

He went on to serve at Headquarters, Strategic Air Command, the Pentagon, and the Joint Strategic Target Planning Staff (JSTPS). At JSTPS he was the Deputy Chief of the Analysis and Simulation Division – the office that analyzed all U.S. strategic nuclear war plans. In 1991, he was selected to be on an elite, five-person team charged with making the U.S. Strategic Command a reality.

After graduating from Air War College at Maxwell Air Force Base, he became the Director of Plans and Programs at the Ira C. Eaker College for Professional Development at Air University on Maxwell AFB. Thompson introduced computer-based instruction and web-based data gathering, and created a leadership course for lieutenant colonels selected to become squadron commanders.

In 1997, he was transferred to the Pentagon, where he oversaw Air Force policies for modeling and simulation. In 1999, he was selected to teach leadership at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces at National Defense University, Washington, D.C. After two years, he was named the college’s Associate Dean of Faculty and Academic Programs.

In 2003, he was awarded a doctorate of education from The George Washington University and, subsequently, was selected to become Dean of Students and Administration at the Information Resources Management College at National Defense University, a position he kept after retiring from the Air Force in December 2003.

In 2004, he joined the faculty at The Eisenhower School for National Security and Resource Strategy at National Defense University as a professor of Behavioral Science. He went on to chair the Department of Strategic Leadership. The university president identified Thompson’s Strategic Leadership Development course as one of the two best courses in the university.

He retired from Federal Civil Service in 2016.

Col Thompson was honored as part of Centralia College’s commencement ceremony in June 2022.

Joe Burr teaches pre-college English and college-prep classes and serves as the faculty advisor for students in Centralia College's youth education program at Green Hill School in Chehalis. He's been at Centralia College since 2013. At that time, he taught part-time both at CC and St. Martin's University, and was a student in graduate school. In 2019, he was offered a full-time, tenured position at CC.

"I love the students I teach and the faculty I work with, and the programs we offer," he said. "Of all the classes he teaches, English is his favorite."

"I loved English until high school and it became a struggle for me. I lost my writer's voice. I hear that from a lot of students. They loved writing until they got to the red ink stage in high school, and they struggled," he said. "I know what that felt like and it doesn't have to be that way."

Burr, a native of Lacey, said it was a great honor to be chosen as an Exceptional Faculty Award winner.

Brian Rauscher

Brian Rauscher grew up in the Midwest, but fell in love with the Pacific Northwest as a graduate student at Lewis and Clark College in Portland. After working in Colorado for ten years, a faculty counselor position opened at Centralia College in 2018 and Rauscher jumped at the chance to return.

Rauscher advises between 100-130 students every quarter, and also teaches human resources classes. For the last three years, he has also been co-chair of the Guided Pathways Committee, which has been working toward a comprehensive revision of CC's educational offerings to better serve students and to make degree completion easier to navigate.

"I love the wide range of students coming in with amazing backgrounds, interests, and goals," he said.

He added that it's an honor to be recognized as an Exceptional Faculty Award winner.

"It's very humbling," he said. "I'm very fortunate to work at such a dynamic institution and fortunate to work with so many amazing people."
